

The Clearing

By John Ludwig Jaegar

The moon a pallid glow did light
My path among the stars
As I traced the constellations
And the silent flight of Mars
When I heard a noise to fright
The bravest of the gods
I turned with the quickness
Lent speed from the crackling brush
Of a creature unknown behind me
And saw the retreating form of a hopping rabbit, as scared if not more frightened.
